D'Banj (D'Banj) A concept car born out of the needs of a contemporary Nigerian-born, New Yorker based designer. "I needed an articulated concept that could reveal not only the spirit of D'Banj but also bring back an element that was lost throughout the 2000s in the design context of Nigeria." By boldly asserting both African and Western influences on a luxury sedan, D'Banj reaffirms the African roots and artistic genius on a global stage, while introducing a new form of rich, green natural materials that are readily available throughout Africa. Today, D'Banj has traveled to various countries, including Burkina Faso, Cameroon, Ghana, South Africa, Nigeria, Ghana and Sierra Leone, discovering raw and natural materials that are readily available throughout the continent. Through his meticulous research and organic process, D'Banj has developed a number of premium, eco-friendly and sustainable initiatives. Currently, the most impactful of his green initiatives are the latex plantations, with plans to grow more over the next year. D'Banj's aim is to ultimately launch and begin selling his collections at the beginning of next year. The D'Banj concept car looks as good as it feels to drive, and features both state-of-the-art technology, as well as, a zero emission propulsion system, that's a first in Nigeria. The cutting-edge body uses a mix of innovative materials, including glass and metal, as well as, wood, rubber and advanced, zero emission LED technology. Also included in the interior are a series of no-impact materials, including the Nylon floor and 09e8f5149f
